WCPT announces winner of photo competition

For immediate release

WCPT is pleased to announce the winner and runners-up of its Movement for Health photography competition.

WCPT launched the competition as part of its World Physical Therapy Day celebrations, focussing on the day's Movement for Health theme. It was looking for creative interpretations showing the importance of physical activity and the contribution the profession makes to keeping populations well, mobile and independent.

The winning image was taken by physical therapist Alex Martin, who took the photograph when he was working in France as a volunteer ski instructor for Association Sportive Handisport du Centre de Rééducation et Appareillage à Valenton (ASHCRAV), an organisation dedicated to the discovery, learning and practice of different sports by amputees.

WCPT would like to thank the members of the judging panel for their contribution to this competition: Michel Coppieters (Associate Professor, Physiotherapy, Kathmandu University, Nepal and University of Queensland, Australia); Simon Crompton (Editor, WCPT News); Chris Okafor (Physical therapist, Nigeria Society of Physiotherapy); Marten Poot (Physical therapist, Netherlands).
